I was born in Buenos Aires, Argentina. We moved to LA when I started high school.

In college, I majored in French literature and minored in Art History. After spending my junior year in Paris surrounded by the works I had only seen as reproductions in books, I knew that art would play an important role in my life.

I taught French and Spanish for 35 years at the high school level. In the advanced classes, I always particularly enjoyed teaching units on French or Spanish art history.

In 2005, my husband and I bought a small apartment in the medieval village of Paciano in Umbria. There, we are surrounded by natural and man made beauty. I am now part of a small circle of local artists in the area. I participated in two art workshops while in Italy, one in lake Como and the other in Todi. A few years ago, I had the great pleasure of exhibiting 6 of my paintings in a group show at the Museo del Tulle in Panicale, the town next door to Paciano in Umbria.

In LA, I have been studying art for over 10 years with Ilana Bloch in whose studio I meet stimulating and like minded artists. I am a member of Women Painter's West, California Art League and Los Angeles Art Association with whom I have exhibited in several shows, receiving awards on several occasions.

I have also participated in many open call gallery shows.
