Raised in Southern Africa, (Zimbabwe), and then transplanted to the United States as a teenager; Roger has learned to straddle dynamically different worlds and cultures. His art reflects the empirical worlds of traditional or realistic figurative paintings and portraiture. After receiving a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from The University of the Arts in Philadelphia, he continued painting at the Art Students League in New York City, where he studied the Frank Reilly method of painting with Jack Faragasso. His commissioned portraits, still-lives and abstract paintings hang in the homes and offices of patrons throughout the United States. Concurrently, Roger is an artist and a musician he teaches art at Segerstrom High School in Santa Ana, CA.
